Big Capital adds to what must be a commitment to change. It lays out clearly that the struggle for space will be at the top of the agenda within large cities (Lisa Mckenzie, Research Fellow in the Department of Sociology, London School of Economics)

Big Capital Who Is London

The current state of London housing is an affront to civilisation. It is going to require creative and determined public action, not blind faith in the market, to change it. • Big Capital by ...

Anna Minton's Big Capital uncovers the processes of extracting the most value out of a global city - a process that I would argue can be described as social cleansing. Her work shows clearly how this process values people only for their wealth, how much they earn and how much square footage they take up.

The impact of global capital and foreign investment on local communities is being felt in major cities across the world. Since the 2012 Olympics was awarded to the British capital, East London has been at the heart of the largest and most all-encompassing top-down urban regeneration strategy in civic history.

Houses were once places where people lived; today, first and foremost, they are financial assets. In Big Capital, the journalist and academic Anna Minton seeks to explain why the property market is broken and who is to blame. In a slim, readable volume of fewer than 200 pages, she gives us a convincing account.
